

NOTES.

W. M. Hawkes and H. R. M. Woodhouse (I.C.i) have come out 7th and 8th in the examination for Assistant Clerkships for the Royal Navy. There were 20 vacancies.

F. H. E. Townshend has passed out of Woolwich into the Royal Engineers.

The VIII at Bisley.

JULY 12TH.

'This year there was a record entry, no fewer than 50 Public Schools of England and Scotland sending teams . . . The weather was not at all favourable for shooting. A strong, gusty wind blew diagonally across the range from the north-east, and the light was very changeable. When firing began at 500 yards, the wind suddenly veered to the north-west, and the wind allowance had to be changed from 3° right to 4° left. In the circumstances the scores were very creditable.'—(Daily Telegraph, July 13th).

For the Ashburton Shield we were 16th, a poor result, even under adverse conditions. The last three members of the team did not cover themselves with glory, whereas the first three again added to their reputations as thoroughly reliable Bisley shots.

BOATING CHARACTERS.

Bow. C. H. Bristow.—A neat and stylish oar who works hard for his weight. If he gets into good company, he will make a good oar.

2. H. G. Salmond.—Slides well, but is short in his swing. Uses his legs well.

3. C. R. Stewart.—A very strong oar who is seen at his best in a race. Rather rough at present, and uses his slide badly.

4. R. Lacey.—Rather disappointing ; did not improve on last year's form as much as he should have done.

5. R. S. Bacon.—A neat oar, but has not learnt to use his legs enough. Sits up, and gets his hands away well.

6. C. Holmes.—A very useful oar when he remembers to swing properly. Apt to get very short.

7. N. P. Morrison (Capt.).—Scarcely rows a long enough stroke to make a good no. seven, but his experience made him indispensable to the place. A good time-keeper, but too fond of trusting to arm work.

Stroke. R. A. Thompson.—Rows a lively stroke and keeps his crew going. With more experience should be very useful.

Cox. E. Koenig.—Steers well and has developed a great voice.
