

Late Cricket.

The School v. Merchant Taylors School.

There was a capital finish to the Merchant Taylors' match which, thanks largely to a fine stand by Humfrey and Wheatley for the eighth wicket, we won by three wickets. As Humfrey also got rid of four batsmen behind the sticks he had a good share in the win. Wheatley played a very neat little innings and made his runs like a cricketer. The side owed a good deal to Dix, who, though he got out by a very bad shot, played vigorous cricket, driving hard and bringing off many well-timed strokes to leg. Moreover, he took five wickets, and did the hat-trick. Lambert was out to a fine catch when well set. Considering the excellence of the wicket and our bowling weakness, our opponents' batting was painfully slow, and they had to be dug out. Andrews's batting was, however, very sound. After looking like winning easily an extraordinary collapse nearly cost us the game.

A really excellent performance on a strange range, and under the new and more difficult Ashburton regulations. Our thanks are due to our hosts for their hospitality, and we congratulate them on what was also their best score this year.
